TEACHER'S SPECIAL INNOVATIVE IDEAS FOR TEACHING AND SOCIETAL BENEFIT

This document presents department-wise innovative, academic, and community-oriented initiatives undertaken to enhance experiential learning, digital competency, environmental awareness, heritage appreciation, and social welfare. These activities reflect the institution's commitment to holistic education, community engagement, and the development of socially responsible students.

A. BOTANY DEPARTMENT1. Flipped Classroom with Outdoor Plant Study (Routine Activity)

The department regularly implements a Flipped Classroom model by sharing pre-class digital content (videos, notes, readings) to strengthen conceptual understanding.

To complement classroom learning, outdoor plant study sessions are conducted across the campus where students observe herbs, shrubs, trees, and micro-ecosystems.

This integrated approach enhances experiential learning, field skills, ecological literacy, and critical thinking.

Teacher Signature: S. Kanwar2. Tagging of Plants in the CampusDate: 0-11-24

Students scientifically tagged campus flora with labels displaying their common and botanical names, transforming the campus into a living botanical reference accessible to all learners.

Teacher Signature: S. Kanwar3. Plantation DriveDate: 8-10-24

Students planted native saplings as part of an environmental sustainability initiative.

They learned about ecological balance, green cover importance, and conservation practices.

E. TEACHER-LED SOCIAL SUPPORT & COMMUNITY WELFARE INITIATIVES

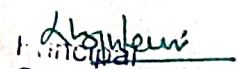

7. Donation of Bicycle to a Student – Prof. Ashiwani Kumar Mandhotra

Prof. Mandhotra donated a bicycle to a needy student, improving the student's commuting and educational access.

This initiative strengthened educational continuity and student motivation.

8. Donation of Dress and Books – Prof. Sachin Kumar Monga

Prof. Monga supported economically weaker students by donating clothes and books, helping them continue their education with dignity and confidence.

G. D. C. Baldwara,
Distt. Mandi (H.P.)

9. Fee Assistance for Students – Dr. Sanjay Sharma

Dr. Sharma provided financial support through fee assistance to ensure that economic constraints did not interrupt a student's education.

This reflects a strong commitment to equity and inclusion.

10. Preservation of Local Heritage – Dr. Nancee

Dr. Nancee contributed to conserving a local ancient Shiva temple by supporting tiling and maintenance work.

Her efforts promoted cultural preservation and involved students in heritage awareness.

Conclusion

The above initiatives, undertaken under Teacher's Special Innovative Ideas for Teaching and Societal Benefit, have significantly enriched academic quality and strengthened community outreach.

They collectively promote:

- Experiential and field-based learning
- Digital and scientific competency
- Environmental awareness
- Cultural and heritage appreciation
- Social responsibility and compassion

These teacher-led contributions highlight the institution's dedication to holistic development, societal support, and nurturing responsible citizens.

CERTIFICATE OF FLIPPED CLASSROOM & OUTDOOR PLANT STUDY ACTIVITY

(Routine Academic Practice – Botany Department)

This is to certify that the Botany Department of the College regularly conducts a Flipped Classroom Activity integrated with Outdoor Plant Study as part of its routine teaching-learning process.

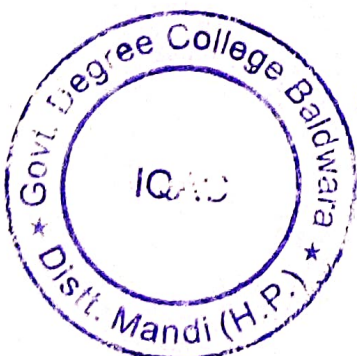

Under this method, the concerned faculty members provide students with pre-class learning materials such as videos, lecture notes, digital readings, and reference resources. Students review this material in advance, enabling them to participate more actively in class, engage in higher-order discussions, and strengthen conceptual understanding.

To complement classroom learning, the department routinely organizes Outdoor Plant Study Sessions within the campus and nearby areas. During these sessions, students:

- Observe and identify herbs, shrubs, trees, and micro-ecosystems
- Study morphological, anatomical, and ecological characteristics
- Apply theoretical knowledge to real-world plant diversity
- Develop scientific observation, field skills, and environmental awareness

This combined instructional approach promotes experiential learning, critical thinking, and field-based competencies, thereby enriching the overall learning experience of Botany students.

The activity is conducted under the supervision of the Botany faculty and remains a continuous and ongoing practice of the department.

Activities For Session ...2024-25.....

Tagging of Indoor Plants on College Campus
Botany department in collaboration with the Eco Club hosted a Tagging of Indoor Plants Program on November 6, 2024. This event was designed to raise awareness about indoor plants' ecological significance and encourage sustainable practices within our community. During the program, participants engaged in various activities, including identifying and tagging various indoor plants, learning about their care requirements, and understanding their role in improving indoor air quality. Faculty members shared valuable insights into the ecological benefits of indoor plants and how they can contribute to a healthier living environment. The enthusiastic participation of students and faculty alike significantly enhanced the success of the initiative. This collaborative effort aimed to foster a greater appreciation for nature and to focus on the importance of creating a greener, more eco-friendly campus that benefits both the environment and its inhabitants.

APPRECIATION LETTER
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

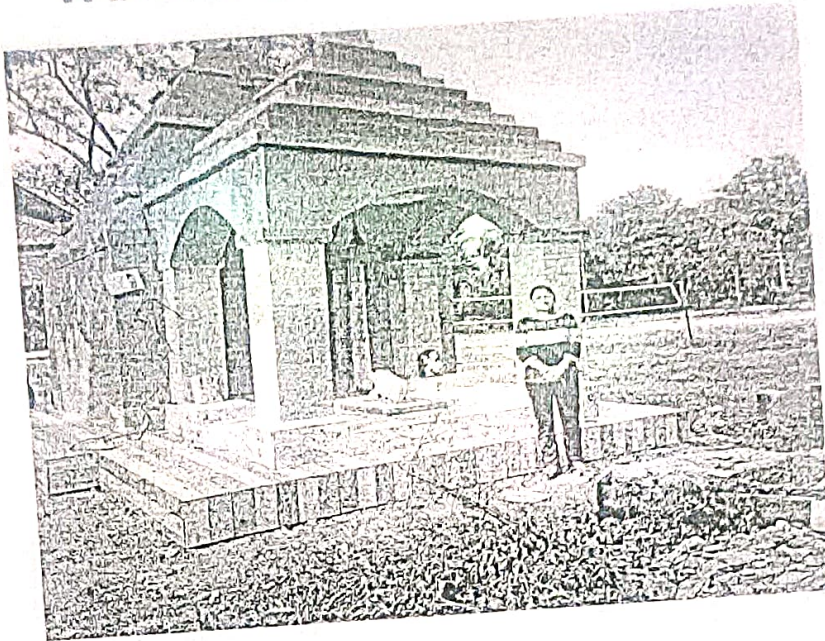

Dr. Sanjay Kumar

On behalf of staff and student who received your generous help, I express my deepest gratitude for your remarkable generosity in donating the fee to one of our needy student. Your kind and selfless act has made an incredible difference in his life, ensuring he can continue his education without financial barriers.

WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Dr. Nancee

On behalf of Govt. Degree College Baldwara, I express my deepest gratitude for your remarkable contribution in preservation of the ancient monuments situated in the college campus. This time the tiling work that you have made on the floor of the Shiva temple in the campus will certainly give the strength to the old structure of the temple. Your kindness will give significant motivation to local inhabitants.
