ABSTRACT

Air pollution in India has increased rapidly due to population growth, increase in the numbers of vehicles, use of fuels, industrialization and most important, ineffective environment regulations. According to world health organization, six major air pollutants include particle pollution, ground-level ozone, carbon monoxide, sulfur oxides, nitrogen oxides and lead. Long and short term exposure to air suspended toxicants has a different toxicological impact on human including respiratory and cardiovascular diseases, neuropsychiatric complication, the eyes irritation, skin diseases, and long term chronic diseases such as cancer. Air pollution is considered as the major environmental risk factor in the incidence and progression of some diseases such as asthma, lung cancer, ventricular hypertrophy, alzheimer's and Parkinson,s diseases, psychological complications, autism, retinopathy, fetal growth, and low birth weight. In this review article, we aimed to discuss toxicology of major air pollutants, sources of emission, and their impact on human health.

Keywords: Air pollution, industrialization, cardiovascular diseases, neuropsychiatric complication, toxicology.
